Think about what you see when you are driving.

Draw a road sign you see often.

Draw a new road sign you learned today.

Prepositions tell us direction, position, or location. They can also tell us the relationship of one word to another. In traffic situations, these help to explain how to find something or give directions to a place.

Across – from one side to the other side
Between – within the space that separates two other objects or places
In front of - in a position just ahead or at the front part
Near – close to
Opposite of – on the exact other side

Write out directions for three locations on the map using the starting points given by your instructor.

How to get to ... from ...
How to get to ... from ...
